

AN INQUIRY INTO THE SOURCES OF GROWTH IN THE SOVIET ECONOMY

Semi-Annual Meeting of CED Trustees
Shoreham Hotel, Washington, D. C.
November 17, 1960

The theme of the exchange of economists between the United States and the Soviet Union was the sources of economic growth in our respective economies. As a consequence, each of the six Americans selected to visit the Soviet Union chose a particular aspect of that theme on which to focus his attention. Since returning, each participant has been preparing his report on his special topic. The presentation to the CED Trustees in Washington on November 17 will be the first exposition of these unique reports. The topics and their exponents are as follows:

The Organization and Conduct of Economic Planning in the USSR
Professor Gregory Grossman
Department of Economics, University of California

Capital Planning and the Condition of Soviet Industrial Plants
Dr. George Terborgh
Research Director, Machinery and Allied Products Institute

Research and Development and the Introduction of New Technology
Dr. Herbert Stein
Director, Research Division, Committee for Economic Development

Soviet Agriculture
Professor Theodore W. Schultz
Department of Economics, University of Chicago, and Chairman of the CED Team

Soviet Investments in Education
Professor Theodore W. Schultz

Mobilization and Motivation of the Soviet Labor Force
Dr. Leon M. Herman
Soviet Affairs Division, Library of Congress

Selection, Training and Motivation of Top Management in the USSR
Dr. Floyd A. Bond
Director, Business-Education Division, CED

A panel of outstanding experts on Soviet affairs is being invited to ask questions and to comment upon the foregoing presentations, and opportunity will be afforded for general discussion. The result should be the most incisive and authoritative view of the Soviet economy ever made available to American business leaders and their guests.

(The foregoing program will begin at 10:30 a.m., following a business session for Trustees only. The program will extend through lunch until approximately 4:30. The entire proceeding will be off-the-record.)
